Just One Won't Hurt Jane Grahl

Separated from her longtime school friends, fifteen year old Kellie Jamison, the perfect daughter and the apple of her parent's eyes, found the transition from middle school to high school a much greater undertaking than she had anticipated.

Kellie struggled to maintain the A average that had always been so easy for her before. As she became more agitated each day at school, someone was watching her increased anxiety. Someone who wanted to lend a hand by leaving her a small note of folded paper on her desk with something wrapped inside it.

The decision Kellie made that day, as she opened the note, would haunt her for the rest of her life but also would teach her a valuable lesson.
