In 1908 A. R. Valentien (American, 1862–1925) was commissioned by Ellen Scripps of San Diego to paint the wildflowers of California. From 1908 to 1918 he traveled the state from south to north, in every habitat, painting almost 1,500 species of plants, including ferns, trees, and grasses. Although the plan was to publish a book illustrated with the exquisite paintings, the enterprise proved too costly, and Valentien died in 1925 with this massive amount of work unseen. In 1933 the entire collection was donated to the San Diego Natural History Museum, and in 2003 the paintings were published. The twelve chosen for this calendar exemplify the extraordinarily delicate hand Valentien employed in creating his superb botanicals.

Size: 12 x 13 in.; opens to 12 x 26 in. Printed on FSC certified paper with soy-based inks.
